Internet Awareness

Tuesday 5th February 2019

Miss Vic Pooler and Mrs Sarah Clarke

Aims of this morning...

- Have fun with your child/children and get a feel for the kinds of experiences they get here at our school.
- Become more aware of how and why we take such a strong stance when it comes to teaching internet safety.
- To give you some hints and tips for things you might try at home to support your child with safer internet use.
- To ask questions about our curriculum.

It won't happen to us here...

- The internet has changed life beyond recognition.
- There are so many positive, powerful things that come from using the internet.
- We also need to be aware of the dangers and coach our children in order to protect them from the dangers the internet can bring.
- Talking to our children and ensuring we are aware of what they are accessing on the internet is the best tool at our disposal.

County lines drugs gangs

County Lines involves the supply of Class A drugs from the major cities - mainly London, Liverpool, Manchester, and Birmingham - to the smaller towns and cities of England and Wales.

As the big city drug operation moves in, the smaller community suffers. Houses are often taken over or 'cuckooed' by gang members who are unknown to local police or the community.

They will direct operations from a base before moving on.

Local addicts will be used as runners to deliver the drugs to buyers and deals arranged via a single phone line. Often texts will be sent out advertising special deals or details about what drugs are available.

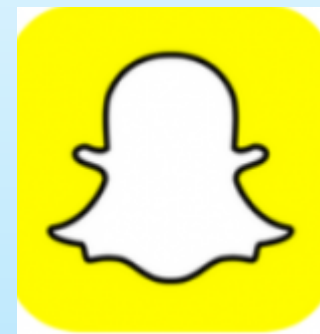

County lines is now the preferred method of choice for gangs looking for a lucrative share of Exeter's drugs market.

1. They insist on scoffing at you for being a vegetarian, claiming people who don't eat meat are "losers" or "stupid", when in reality they're secretly jealous because they are lacking the willpower it takes to know you will never be able to eat a cheese burger again.

The top site on the search engine is an article from a newspaper's website.

However, the text is quite vociferous in its views!

Reddit prides itself on users having the right to free speech, no matter the content...

The next searches came from Reddit, which is a news / chat based website.

It is made up of subreddits, which say what the content of that page is e.g. r/vegan is for people who wish to post and comment about veganism. There is also r/antivegan...

It is pretty unregulated – each subreddit has a moderator but that moderator chooses which posts are banned and which are not.

Is this extremism?

- In a simple word...no.
- However, with unfiltered or unlimited access to the internet, there is potential for anyone to access enough extreme information or discover places online where there are like-minded people.
- If this continues, anyone could become radicalised to an extreme point of view...

What are we doing to help keep children safe in school?

- In November 2014 the DfE published advice stating that schools should promote:
- values of democracy
- the rule of law
- individual liberty
- mutual respect and tolerance of those with different faiths and beliefs.

Monitoring online activity:

Things to think about at home:

- Do children have unlimited access to the internet, including YouTube?
- If your children have log-ons for website, do you know the passwords?
- Have you looked at parental controls on your devices?
- Do you know how to check what your children have been searching for?

The internet is an amazing thing...

Let's go have some fun
